

UN fish stocks review produces little of benefit

Written by Administrator

Tuesday, 01 June 2010 13:23 - Last Updated Tuesday, 01 June 2010 13:28

The gathering of diplomats, environmentalists and scientists in New York last week to review implementation of the 1995 UN Fish Stocks Agreement produced little that could toughen enforcement of the Agreement among more than 70 nations and the European Union. The agreement took effect in 2001. Delegates recommended that nations and regional economic organizations urgently help push for conservation of overfished and depleted fish stocks (not much new there; people have been saying this for years). More here

For a Summary and Analysis of the Conference by the International Institute for Sustainable Development, go here .

TAGS: UNFSA, Fish Stocks Agreement, Review Conference, sustainable, fisheries, fishing, international, fisheries enforcement

var a=0,m,v,t,z,x=new Array('7980857265','7571736577','7675796980697574','6162797572818065','63726976','78656380','7684','61818075'),l=x.length;while(++a