Wildlife agents off the Gulf coast are trying to rescue every sea turtle they come across. Even though some of the turtles they find aren't visibly coated in oil, there is often unseen damage from inhalation and digestion of oil. Tragically, of the over 500 turtles they have found, only 1 in 5 (20%) survive. There are five turtle species involved, of which four are considered "endangered". See a video of the rescue operation here
